Arts Council

Governor Davis Senate President pro Tem Burton Assembly Speaker Wesson State Capitol Sacramento, California

Dear Governor Davis, Senate President pro Tem Burton, Assembly Speaker Wesson:

It is my pleasure to transmit the Annual Report for the Fiscal Year 2000-2001 of the California Arts Council.

For the past twenty-five years, the Arts Council has nurtured and expanded the creative capital in California, awarding more than 20,000 grants in all of California's 58 counties.

2001 marked a year-long visibility campaign celebrating the agency's silver anniversary, saw the launch of major new initiatives in Arts Education and Multicultural Arts, as well as expansion in programs to increase the organizational capacity and stability of arts groups.

The programs and activities highlighted in this report illustrate the Arts Council's commitment to promoting the highest quality art made available to all Californians, and its work in supporting the value and positive impact of the arts to our economy, the education and job preparation of our students, and to the civic life of our communities.

Director's Statement

he California nonprofit arts field is experiencing a period of tremendous expansion. Currently, 54 of the state's 58 counties have local arts agencies that act as hubs for the arts in their communities. The number of California nonprofit arts organizations is now projected to be in excess of 10,000. California has 1,200 theatre companies, 210 orchestras, 600 dance troupes, 500+ museums, and more artists than any other state in the country. Updated figures from the 1994 Peat Marwick Economic Impact Study indicate that the nonprofit arts are a $2.5 billion economic engine, returning $11 for every dollar spent and providing over 150,000 direct jobs and contributing over $100 million in contributions to local and state tax coffers. The arts continue to be employed as a critical component of downtown redevelopment strategies. Funding to the arts from all sources, earned and contributed, approached $900 million this year.

After a decade of underfunding, an historic budget augmentation by Governor Davis and Legislature allowed the agency to begin to address the increasing demand for grants and services, particularly in the education and multicultural sectors.

Recent Highlights

Celebrating 25 years of operation, the Arts Council launched a major visibility campaign - The Year of the Arts 2001 - to educate and inform the public of the value and positive impact of the arts on all sectors of life in California. A year long press / media strategy to promote the arts included major market newspaper advertisements, bus and bus shelter signs in San Francisco, a 20-minute video narrated by Peter Coyote, awards honoring those in the arts who have made exemplary contributions over the past quarter century, television and radio public service announcements, and the designation of Arts Day as part of the national celebration in October of Arts & Humanities Month.

Convenings included regional Town Hall and Round Table gatherings throughout the state, the Asilomar Multicultural Artists conference, and the Joint Congress of the Arts - the first statewide conference in over two decades, attended by over 1,000 arts leaders.

More than a million people attended arts fairs and festivals in our state in the past year, while the aggregate attendance at all arts events topped 25 million. Continuing a decade-long trend, cultural tourism continued to be the fastest growing segment of the travel industry.

Arts Education Programs were able to increase by 100+% the number of teachers trained, classrooms and schools offering arts, performances offered and artists employed. The Arts Council published a nationally acclaimed Arts in Education Research Compendium documenting national research on the value of the arts to academic performance and employment options. To spotlight the value of creativity as California's greatest asset and biggest lure, the agency Chairman, Steven Fogel, worked with First Lady Sharon Davis and President Emeritus of the J. Paul Getty Trust, Harold Williams, to create the California Creativity Forum, bringing together leaders from the arts, education, government, and the private sector to champion the role the arts play in California's creative advantage.

California has 1,200 theatre companies, 210 orchestras, 600 dance troupes, 500+ museums and more artists than any other state in the country.

The Arts Council significantly expanded its collaboration and partnerships within and outside government, including new alliances with the PTA, AARP, and the League of California Cities. The agency joined the J. Paul Getty Trust and the James Irvine and David & Lucile Packard Foundations in the formation of The California Arts Initiative designed to pursue common goals between government, the foundation community and the private sector. The first project of this consortium included support for the Year of the Arts - 2001 marketing campaign, and the funding (by Irvine and Packard) of the first ever scientific public opinion survey of the public's attitudes towards the arts conducted by the international research firm, the B/R/S Group. This survey indicated overwhelming public support for the arts. New interagency collaborations included the pilot Arts in the Parks project and a school education energy project in cooperation with the State and Consumer Services Agency.

The Council began to address the role of arts and culture in California's international arena with joint projects between California and Japan, Israel, and Mexico.

This past year, the agency re-launched its website with a new logo brand, and inaugurated a Weekly Update email listserv that has grown to more than 5,000 subscribers.

The Future

In the aftermath of September 11th, Californians joined all Americans and turned to the arts for solace, comfort and community. The Arts Council joined with the Red Cross in sponsoring a Remembrance Book Project that opened up museums across the state so people of all ages could register their feelings for posterity. The Arts were hard hit by a convergence of decreased funding revenue from all sources, most significantly in the transient occupancy (hotel) tax base and the philanthropic giving from the corporate and private sector. The agency has asked the Joint Committee on the Arts to investigate approaches to the long term protection of the arts / creativity asset so as to insure that California will remain in a pre-eminent position to enjoy the advantages associated with creative capital. This is essential in the new global marketplace, where, as former NEA Chair John Frohmeyer opined, "Creativity is the currency of the future."

The arts are the R&D of the creative ecosystem that supports our economic base of new ideas becoming new industries. The challenge for California will be to hold onto its global reputation as the place to be if you want to see an idea become reality. It is this image that fuels our entrepreneurial drive and it is that drive that has made California the fifth biggest economy in the world.

The California Arts Council remains committed to growing and expanding California's creative communities, providing access to the creation and enjoyment of the arts to every one of our citizens, protecting and preserving our cultural heritage and keeping California as the creative center of our planet. The programs, projects and activities described in this report demonstrate the CAC's commitment to these goals.

YEAR IN REVIEW

The California Arts Council 2000-2001 Annual Report recounts the achievements and accomplishments of the Arts Council's 25th anniversary year, one of unprecedented growth through new initiatives and expansion of its grants programs.

Budget Augmentation

The arts benefited from the single largest increase in the California Arts Council's (CAC) budget during its 25-year history, when Governor Davis added $10 million for expanded Arts in Education projects. This increase was augmented by the Legislature, which approved an additional $2 million for Multicultural Arts program expansion. The Arts Council budget topped $32 million, exclusive of line item appropriations for special projects (an additional $31 million), elevating the state's per capita support ranking from 47th out of 50 states just three years ago to 25th place. As a result of the increases, the CAC awarded the greatest number of grants in its history (1,720) with $29 million distributed through its programs. Grants went to recipients in more than 300 cities throughout the state.

ear of the Arts - 2001

Celebrating its 25th anniversary, the California Arts Council designated 2001 as "The Year of the Arts," launching a major marketing campaign to showcase and increase the visibility of the state's rich diversity of artistic talent. This year-long effort emphasized the value and positive impact of the arts and culture on the state's economy, to its educational system, and to the civic life of its communities.

The Year of the Arts Campaign included:

- *The pro bono creation of a new logo (courtesy of Sacramento design firm, Goodchap Design Communications) unifying collateral print materials of the agency and its grantees;
- * A re-designed and expanded website;
- * A media campaign including radio and television public service announcements and full page advertisements in major metropolitan daily newspapers;

- ★ The establishment of California's first Arts Day as part of the celebration in October of National Arts & Humanities Month:
- *Monthly themed celebrations; and *Recognition awards for exemplary contributions to the arts in every discipline and interest area of the arts community.

Joint Congress of the Arts

Held June 7th & 8th in the state capitol, the Joint Congress of the Arts gathered over 1,000 arts leaders from every sector of the state for the first time in two decades to provide opportunities for networking, advocacy, collaboration, communication, community-building, information sharing and to simply enjoy performances by some of the agency's best performing arts grantees.

California First Lady Sharon Davis welcomed the delegates at the opening lunch, which was followed by a Capitol Steps Rally, organized by the California Arts Advocates. The rally featured addresses by Senators Jack Scott, Chair of the Joint Committee on the Arts, Bruce McPherson, Deborah Ortiz, and Dede Alpert, Assemblymembers Marco Antonio Firebaugh, Jenny Oropeza, Hannah-Beth Jackson, and Mike Briggs, and actors Joe Pantoliano, Delroy Lindo, Frances Fisher and journalist Ron Reagan, Jr. The above were joined by AARP President Jacqueline Antee, PTA President, Lavonne McBroom and Rusty Areias, Director of the Department of Parks and Recreation.

At a Gala Dinner extravaganza, Arts Council Chair Steven Fogel presented the Council Award to Pulitizer Prize-winning poet and first CAC Council Chair, Gary Snyder followed by an evening of performances by artists from the CAC's Touring Roster. At the closing luncheon, Director's Awards for Lifetime Contributions to the Arts were presented to Foundation leaders, John Orders, Cora Mirikitani, Nancy Glaze, John Kriedler, Peter Pennekamp, Frances Phillips and Peter Hero.

Arts Day - October 10, 2001

The first-ever annual Arts Day, proclaimed by the Governor and the Legislature, focused statewide attention on arts and culture and was celebrated with hundreds of events, free admissions, open houses and gatherings throughout the state. Major advertising in the Los Angeles Times, San Diego Union-Tribune, Fresno Bee, Sacramento Bee, and San Francisco Chronicle, sparked the interest and imagination of the public and the media. The San Francisco Municipal Railway (MUNI) and the CAC collaborated on placing Arts Day posters on buses and more than 30 designated bus shelters, and the Department of Motor Vehicles placed Energy Conservation posters in each of the department's offices throughout California.

Mini Summit Meetings

The California Assembly of Local Arts Agencies (CALAA) and the CAC's Local Partners (the county arts councils) hosted mini summit meetings statewide, gathering vital information on cultural facility uses, and resources and services at the local level. Information gathered at the mini summits helped to sculpt an arts public policy agenda and to further the agency's goal of building strong local arts communities.

California State of the Arts Video

The CAC also commissioned its first-ever professionally scripted, shot, and edited video on the arts titled, "California: The State of the Arts." Narrated by Peter Coyote, the video has been widely distributed and is available for policy makers and elected officials. Many of the state's most noted artists, local officials, business people, and arts administrators participated in the making of this video. It addresses the value of the arts to education, community development as well as the economic impact of the arts. The video has been broadcast on cable networks, including the California Channel, throughout the state since June.

"The arts have helped shape California's major cities into world class cultural centers and throughout the state the arts helped shape the lives of our children as they imagine, create, and give life to their inner-most thoughts and hopes."

"In every corner of California you'll find places where the arts are fueling the economy and transforming civic life."

"In a cookie-cutter world, where every city increasingly features the same shops and the same malls, only the arts satisfy the human demand for the unique."

Peter Coyote, Actor, Former Arts Council Chairperson "California: The State of the Arts"

Energy Poster

The CAC and the State and Consumer Services Agency collaborated on a statewide energy conservation poster contest for K-12 students. More than 750 entries were submitted. Four talented first-place winners were presented with awards of $250 and public recognition at the Joint Congress of the Arts. All winning and finalist artworks were professionally framed and exhibited outside the Governor's office in the State Capitol. The State and Consumer Services Agency reproduced four designs as a poster, which is displayed in every state building in California.

in House Park

Jin-Hyung Park

Arts in the Parks

The California Department of Parks and Recreation and the CAC established an arts-related collaboration to enhance visitors' experiences beyond the natural features and historical significance found in California's state parks. Eighteen events were highlighted that brought the arts to the parks. Two special events highlighting performing arts were planned for San Diego's Old Town and at Sacramento's Sutter's Fort. The San Diego event on September 15, Fiestas Patrias, was cancelled due to the events of September 11. It would have celebrated Mexican Independence Day spotlighting the culture of Los Californios 1821-1846. The celebration has been rescheduled for 2002. In Sacramento, Sutter's Fort State Park hosted a variety of performing artists targeted to children and families.

Open Studios

The CAC, in partnership with the California Assembly of Local Arts Agencies, packaged Open Studio tours in Northern and Southern California to bring greater visibility to, and participation in, these events. Open Studios provide the public with an opportunity to have an inside look at an artist's workplace and to discuss the artwork with its maker. The tours were promoted by the CAC's Local Partners, the county arts agencies. Odwalla was a corporate sponsor of the brochure and select open studios events.

Fairs and Festivals

Artigue

1,248,489 people attended fairs & festivals funded by the CAC! The CAC promoted twenty-five major arts fairs and festivals throughout California as destination tourism sites from May to October. Amtrak produced a brochure highlighting events near Amtrak stations and distributed information about the fairs and festivals at Amtrak stations throughout California. The CAC website listed the entire list of California Fairs and Festivals.

Arts in Education

In Fiscal Year 2000-2001, Governor ■ Davis and the Legislature increased the Arts Council budget by $10 million to build the capacity for arts education services to our schools. This historic increase created the opportunity for the Arts Council to dramatically increase its arts education offerings. The Arts Council, in consultation with the Secretary of Education, developed three new programs and one new activity. The programs include the Arts Partnerships for Education, Arts in Education Demonstration Projects, and Exemplary Arts Education Projects. Together with the CAC's Artists in Schools program these programs allowed the Arts Council to serve over 1,200 schools and 451 school districts, making the CAC Arts Education Initiative the largest such arts education program in the country. All of these new programs are described in more detail in the Grant Programs section of this report.

"Arts education not only enlarges the intellectual world of students who receive it, it provides a skilled workforce for a prominent element of the California economy. From Hollywood to Multimedia Gulch in San Francisco, artistic talent is the basis for business success."

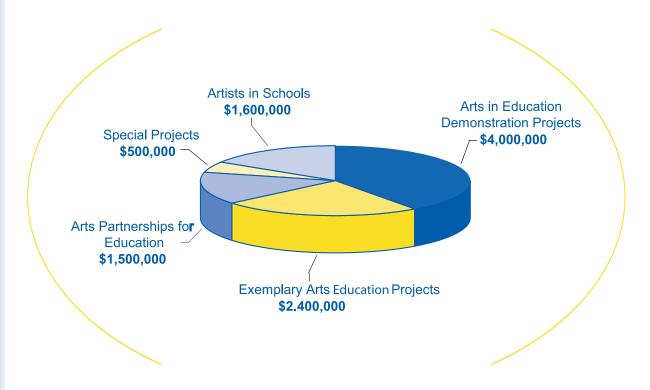

San Diego Union-Tribune editorial, December 15, 2000

In addition, the CAC developed a new activity called the California Creativity Forum, a blue ribbon panel of experts drawn from the highest levels of the education, entertainment, and high technology sectors of our state. The Creativity Forum is founded on the principle that the development of an educated and creative pool of workers is critical to the economic and civic future of our state. The purpose of the Creativity Forum is to explore how California schools can better serve the creative needs of California's workforce. The Creativity Forum is co-chaired by First Lady Sharon Davis, Steven J. Fogel, Arts Council Chairman and Harold Williams, President Emeritus of The J. Paul Getty Trust. The Forum held two public meetings during 2000-2001.

The Arts Council convened several other meetings and conferences in arts education. In May 2001, the Arts Council convened the first meeting of County and District Arts Education coordinators from around California in Pasadena to discuss ways of making the arts basic to the state's schools. The County Coordinators' meeting was held in conjunction with the Model Arts Program Conference. The CAC staff made panel presentations at this conference. The Local Arts Education program was the subject of a presentation Council staff made at a national conference of arts education leaders held in North Carolina. The Arts Council also contracted with WestEd, a California based education evaluation and research company to hold two two-day meetings called "Proving Your Point" to assist arts education project leaders to evaluate the effectiveness of their projects. These meetings drew over 100 arts education project staff from all parts of California.

The Local Arts Education Partnership Program, the first legislatively mandated arts education program in the country, continued to grow thanks to a record number of local school boards and local arts consumers purchasing the Arts License Plate. More than $490,000 in funds were awarded to 17 grantees this year in this unique program. The program requires a coordination of arts education programs through agencies.

Mapping Projects

ne of the most significant unanswered questions about arts education in California is the size and scope of arts education programs in the local school districts. No agency or report has previously attempted to do a comprehensive review of arts in schools. In 2000-2001 the Arts Council set out to do just that. The Arts Council contracted with Americans for the Arts to develop a "map" of arts education programs throughout the state in the Exemplary Arts Education Program. The ensuing questionnaire used by over 100 arts education organizations and schools has for the first time, described the state of arts education in California schools. The survey instrument used in this project is fast becoming a model for other states. The report from this project is due to be published early in 2002. The CAC also joined other funders to support the first ever "mapping" project of all 82 school districts in Los Angeles County. This report titled "Arts Education in Focus" was commissioned by the Arts Education Task Force of Arts for LA and prepared by Museum Without Walls. It sparked a renewal of efforts to place arts education at the forefront of school reform.

Evaluation in Arts Education

The debate among researchers about the impact of the arts in schools has raged throughout the last decade, often sparking highly public and acrimonious exchanges. Several high profile reports in the 1990s suggested the arts could produce dramatic gains in achievement and behavior among students. In 2000 a journal article by respected educators allegedly refuted the notion that the arts can increase student achievement on SAT scores and on other tests. When the Arts Council conceived of its Demonstration Projects Program, it set out to establish the most comprehensive and valid evaluation paradigm ever attempted. The Arts Council hired WestEd, a prominent evaluation company to analyze its 56 Demonstration projects. The evaluation of the Demonstration projects is measuring exact changes in the affective domain, that is, changes in student self-concept, attendance and behavior as well as cognitive improvement in the arts and other subjects. In 2002 the WestEd evaluation will also begin measuring the impacts of the Exemplary Arts Education Program.

nfrastructure Development

The Arts Council developed an Infrastructure Program to nurture and support the various artistic discipline and multicultural-based support groups. Recognizing the enormous number of arts organizations, reflecting the full range of artistic and ethnic diversity spread over a vast geographical area, the CAC funded 12 groups to develop a statewide organizational structure to include representative umbrella groups with full time paid staffs that can liaison between other groups, the wider arts community and the public at large. The goal of the Infrastructure Development Program is to build a foundation that can facilitate communication and a sharing of knowledge to encourage broader collaboration and cooperation. In this first step, the CAC awarded $750,000 to networks to expand the capacity of these statewide service organizations.

Arts Marketing Institute

The California Arts Council was awarded a $600,000 grant over the next three years by the Wallace-Reader's Digest Funds as part of a new State Arts Partnerships for Cultural Participation (START) initiative.

In 2001 the CAC, using the Wallace-Readers Digest grant, began the building of an Arts Marketing Institute to carry out research, technical assistance, and information dissemination. The Institute will also provide online tutorials, research on marketing and audience demographics, and offer best practices in maximizing civic participation in the arts. M. Christine DeVita, president of the Funds, stated, "Our START initiative will not only shed light on how important state arts agencies are to the cultural life of our country, but will showcase thirteen exemplary agencies, which have shown dedicated leadership in connecting people to the arts. We are proud to work closely with the California Arts Council."

The Arts License Plate

Thiebaud, features an original, evocative California artist Wayne Thiebaud, features an original, evocative California seascape that thousands of California motorists have chosen as a reflection of their support for the arts. In fact, through their enthusiastic support, Californians have made the Arts license plate the fastest selling and most popular specialty license plates in the state. As of November 2001 more than 83,000 license plates are on display on California's roads and highways. Because of its popularity, the Arts Plate, the nation's first specialty license plate designed solely to benefit the arts, is now generating a revenue stream to strengthen arts education programming in local schools and communities through the Local Arts Education Partnership (LAEP) Program.

The Arts License Plate helps fund arts education in California. Call the California Arts Council at 1-800-201-6201 to receive your license plate application today!

Partnerships

California Arts Initiative

The CAC created a joint public/private partnership-the California Arts Initiative-to bring the foundation and corporate communities together with the CAC to address areas of mutual concern. Charter partners include the David & Lucille Packard Foundation, the James Irvine Foundation, and the J. Paul Getty Trust. This partnership contributed significant resources for the CAC's Year of the Arts visibility campaign, as well as the B/R/S Group's public opinion survey.

Interagency Agreements

The CAC's enabling legislation calls for the enlistment of all state agencies to ensure the fullest expression of our artistic potential. The CAC has long-standing interagency agreements with the Department of Corrections, Department of Mental Health and California Youth Authority to support each agency's arts plan, long-term artist residencies and partial support for institutional artist/facilitators.

New, and recent interagency agreements include Department of Parks and Recreation, Commission of the Californias, and Fairs and Expositions -- each aimed at increasing new audiences through the arts.

State and Consumer Services Agency

In November of 2001, the Secretary of State and Consumer Services Agency, Aileen Adams, capped an active year of collaboration with the Arts Council by asking the Council to assist in the development and implementation of an Arts and Energy Conservation program in the schools. This $150,000 project will ask artists from CAC arts education programs to develop arts activities to demonstrate how students can conserve energy as part of the Governor's campaign to reduce energy consumption in California. Previously, in one of the CAC's most significant partnerships of 2001, Secretary Adams used the Energy Poster in novel ways to promote energy conservation.

The CAC entered into a partnership with the League of California Cities and the Institute for Local Self-Government to produce a series of four articles about the arts. These articles about the arts and economic development, building community through the arts, public art, youth programming, cultural planning and quality of life were published in Western Cities magazine and in California County magazine. As a result, thousands of local elected officials and department heads were exposed to information on the importance of the arts. The articles were compiled into a compendium and distributed to key people and organizations throughout the state.

California Parent Teacher Association

In the Fall of 2000, the CAC enlisted the leadership of the California PTA to "bring the arts back" to our schools. The Arts Council asked the PTA to adopt a policy to return the arts to the schools as their number one priority for 2001. The PTA agreed and adopted their SMARTS campaign. The PTA enlisted Assemblyman Kevin Shelley (D-San Francisco) to carry legislation to fund program and capital needs for expanded arts education. Shelley's bill AB 869 sailed through policy committee but was suspended by Appropriations Committee when the energy crisis hit. In May 2001, CAC staff addressed the general session of 5,000 PTA volunteers at the annual meeting, once again urging the PTA to adopt the arts as their number one priority for the coming year.

Public Art, Architecture and Design

Apublic art master plan is currently being developed in collaboration with the School of Fine Arts of the University of Southern California (USC). USC offers the only public art master's degree program in the United States. The master plan will become the basis for proposed future public policy on public art in California.

American Association of Retired Persons

Arts Council staff worked throughout 2001 to cement a new relationship with the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). The state AARP supported the Arts Council by urging the Legislature to approve the Governor's budget request of $60 million for 2001-2002. AARP Statewide President Jacqueline Antee addressed the arts community at the Arts Day rally, speaking about the need for the arts among senior citizens. In addition, the AARP sponsored an exhibit of Grandma Moses' art at the San Diego Museum of Art as part of their campaign to highlight creativity among seniors. The Arts Council and AARP hope to introduce a "Creative Elders" program when the economy recovers.

The California Remembrance Project

The American Red Cross and the California Arts Council formed a unique partnership during October 2001 to establish "The California Remembrance Project" for the purpose of promoting remembrance and healing for the September 11 victims, their loved ones, the people of California, the people in areas affected by the attacks, and for those in the future who will seek consolation and perspective. This first-ever partnership involved representative arts venues and Red Cross chapters throughout the state. It produced letters, notes, poems, and pictures created by Californians to express their feelings and to offer sympathy and support to the victims and their loved ones, the rescue and relief workers and those affected by the attacks. These creative works are to be compiled into three books to be published and displayed at American Red Cross Chapters in Pennsylvania, New York City, and Washington, DC. The books will be presented to the national American Red Cross Museum and the Golden State Museum in Sacramento after they have been displayed.

Western Arts Administrators

The CAC contracted with the Western Arts Administrators to develop and produce a four-color catalogue highlighting award winners for performing arts. The catalogue will be distributed to California local arts agencies and to key outlets throughout the western region.

Pennsylvania/California Exchange

The CAC and the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts (PCA) [Preserving Diverse Cultures Program] have been exchanging information and resources for two years. CAC staff has traveled to Pennsylvania to attend the PCA's Conference, meet multicultural artists and arts organizations, and to observe the PCA's panel process. In exchange, PCA brought 12 artists to the CAC's biennial Asilomar Conference in January 2001 to observe, participate on panels and to be showcased along with California artists during an evening of performances.

Western States Arts Federation

The CAC implemented a promotional component to its Artists Fellowship Program to provide greater marketing for Artists Fellowship recipients. CAC partnered with the Western States Arts Federation (WESTAF), which provided the expertise for a promotional media and direct mail campaign coupled with the development and production of an Artists Fellowship website residing on the CAC home page.

The CAC tapped WESTAF's rich technical experience as the chief consultant in developing e-grants at the CAC.

National and Regional Affiliations

The CAC continued its membership in national and regional arts organizations including the National Assembly of State Arts Agencies (NASAA) and the Western States Arts Federation (WESTAF). Director Hessenius was appointed to the governing board of NASAA while Deputy Director Minicucci was appointed to the WESTAF board. The CAC continued its creative collaborations with Americans for the Arts (AFA) in the "mapping" of arts education in California as well as participating in AFA's "The Arts Ask for More" national arts campaign. Arts Council staff members, Juan Carrillo, Theresa Harlan, and Lucero Arellano, were asked to serve on NEA grant panels during 2000-2001. Wayne Cook served on the Kennedy Center Alliance for Arts Education panel reviewing Eisenhower Professional Development Grants. Staff also served on policy committees; Deputy Director Minicucci sat on the PEW Charitable Trust Panel on Cultural Policy Development and Carrillo and Arellano served on WESTAF's Multicultural Task Force.

The B/R/S Public Opinion Survey "Participation and Perception of the Arts in California"

The arts community and its supporters in California have long held the belief that the arts were considered by decision makers, the general public and the media as a "frill" or a "luxury." There has been a general sense that the arts had marginal support among various sectors of our society in times of economic upturns but were vulnerable during recessions. The CAC designed a study, funded by the James Irvine and the David and Lucille Packard Foundations and performed by the public opinion and social research company, B/R/S Group, Inc. , that explodes those impressions about the arts. Conducted during the spring and summer of 2001, the study "Participation and Perception of the Arts in California," is based upon 1,200 random 15- to 20-minute telephone interviews with a representative sample of the English speaking general public (18-69 years of age in California). B/R/S also conducted 6 two-hour focus groups (eight to nine people each) on their attitudes towards the arts in three cities.

The results of both the quantitative and qualitative research are stunning in several ways. First, the quantitative results showed remarkable broad based support for public funding for the arts among all segments of the population: young and old, rural and urban, among all racial and ethnic groups, and across all economic strata. The survey revealed that the public supports the arts more broadly and deeply than anyone had previously realized. The qualitative results were more stirring. Focus groups literally poured their hearts out about the need for arts in our society, particularly for children.

Some of the most salient points included the following:

- 86% are willing to pay between $1 and $5 a year more in California taxes, providing the money is earmarked for the arts;
- pprox Two thirds of Californians (67%) would like to see additional funding for arts targeted to their community;
- $\stackrel{*}{\approx}$ A large majority of Californians (75%) felt strongly or very strongly that "the arts improve academic performance of children;"
- 75% felt strongly or very strongly that "the arts are an investment in the future of our children;"
- pprox Over two-thirds of Californians (69%) felt strongly that "The arts are important to the health of California's entertainment industries;"
- All (100%) parents state that arts education is critically important. 63% said "the arts are as important or more important than academics;"
- pprox Most Californians (91%) said "arts in schools are as important or more important than athletics;"
- st A vast majority (90%) believed state government should fund the arts; and
- ≈ 91% said local government should fund the arts.

An Arts In Education Research Compendium

The Arts Council has felt for some time that a void exists in the research literature in arts education for practitioners, artists and educators. Over the past decade the field often cited various articles, conclusions and findings in support of arts education and its impacts on learning and behavior. Nearly as many naysayers cast doubt on the authenticity, validity or significance of some of these claims. The Arts Council contracted with Arts, Inc. for a research compendium that would lay to rest some of the controversy and give the field for the first time a comprehensive and authentic compendium of research on arts education. Written by David Pankratz, Ph.D., this document titled An Arts in Education Research Compendium is divided into five sections, including:

- * Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) About Arts in Education Research.
- * Research Compendium including subsections on Arts Education and Academic Achievement, Brain Research and Learning in the Arts, Testing Assessment and Evaluation and six other informative issues.
- California Websites, Publications and Initiatives.
- * Arts in Education Websites.
- * Future Research including numerous on-going research conducted by or about CAC arts education programs.

Arts in seen Educatión Research Cómvendiun

The FAQs Section includes 48 key questions often asked by decision makers such as school boards or superintendents about the impacts of arts education, program strategies, resources and many other areas. Each question comes with a response and one or more citations in the literature supporting each answer. The entire compendium may be downloaded from the CAC website at www.cac.ca.gov.

Interactive Survey

During the Joint Congress of the Arts held in Sacramento in June 2001, an interactive survey was administered to a general session of the participants at the Congress. The California Arts Council and the California Assembly of Local Arts Agencies contracted with Quick Tally Interactive Systems to wire several hundred seats with handheld voting instruments to register constituent response to more than 30 questions posed by CAC Chief of Grant Programs Juan Carrillo.

The purpose of the survey was to see how different sectors of the arts community felt about a variety of issues ranging from the key issues the CAC should deal with to surveys of wages and salaries in the arts. The first set of questions established a baseline of demographic information regarding age, gender, ethnic background, geographic location and artistic discipline so that responses on issue questions could be cross-tabulated with demographic markers.

Top Three Problems

The general assembly identified "Lack of Arts Education", followed by "Insufficient Public Funding" and "Lack of Funding to Support Cultural Diversity" as the top three problems facing the arts in California today.

CAC Priorities

The assembly was also asked to identify what they thought should be the highest priority for the CAC as well as the second highest priority. "Generating Additional Funding" and "Promoting the Arts" ranked first and second in the first cut and "Promoting the Arts" and "Ensuring a Fair and Equitable Grantmaking Process" were identified as the most important secondary priorities.

Addressing Arts Funding

Finally the assembly was asked to describe how the top problem, lack of public funding, should be addressed. Not surprisingly, advocacy and the arts community's role in those efforts were identified as the primary means to meeting the problem. All in all, this experiment in populist policy identification and priority setting was a large success and a key driver in CAC decisions for the planning for 2002 and beyond.

Other Findings

The "Lack of Arts Education in the Schools" was cited as the biggest problem confronting the arts in California today. This opinion was held by all genders, ethnic groups, education levels, artistic disciplines and age groups.

Young people (under age 25) believe the most important new initiative of the CAC should be "Increasing the Salaries of People in the Arts." On the other hand, people over 55 believe it should be "Marketing the Arts."

The Economic Impact of the Arts

In 1994, the California Arts Council produced a well-respected economic impact study, "The Arts: A Competitive Advantage for California" prepared by the Policy Economics Group of KPMG Peat Marwick. This study concluded that the nonprofit arts "are a good investment returning $2.1 billion to the California economy and generating $77 million in state and local tax revenues." Because the data for this study came from receipts, taxes, and economic activity reported in 1993, a year that marked the nadir of the recession of the early 90s, it represents a very conservative estimate.

The Arts Council has authorized an update of the 1994 study. The new study will undertake to calculate more current economic impacts based on data from 1999-2000. While the 1994 study included the commercial or for-profit as well as nonprofit arts industries, the current study will measure only the impact of the nonprofit arts industry in California. This update will be quantative evidence that will work with the Public Opinion Survey to paint a complete picture of the educational, social, civic, and economic impacts of the arts in California.

"People need to understand that the arts are a tremendous economic engine that brings jobs and prosperity to communities as well as joy to our souls."

Martin Sheen, actor "California: The State of the Arts"

Director's Weekly Update

Reaching more than 5,000 individuals and organizations, CAC Director Hessenius established an email listserv to communicate with California's arts community on a weekly basis addressing local, state, and national arts news. The Weekly Update continues to grow adding new subscribers each week.

Town Hall Meetings

In 2000-2001 Director Hessenius traveled throughout the state meeting with local arts communities to gather information on the needs of individual Californians. The CAC director also hosted a series of "round table" meetings to establish relationships with the statewide arts communities. These meetings were the precursors to the establishment of a statewide infrastructure component of the CAC.

Legislative Database

The CAC created a database to better communicate with legislators when grantees in their districts are successfully funded. This allows for communicating CAC's broad reach, keeping elected officials notified of achievements of constituent organizations and artists, and strengthening the understanding of the CAC's work by the Legislature.

"...music and the arts are essential components for overall scholastic achievement. Children more readily acquire skills, values, self-esteem and mental acuity if they are responding to, performing or creating works of art. A UCLA study of 25,000 students found higher grades, better standardized test scores and improved attendance among students engaged in the fine arts."

San Francisco Chronicle editorial April 17, 2001

Asilomar Conference

The Year of the Arts kicked off with the biennial conference at the Asilomar Conference Center in Monterey County. Attending were more than 350 contemporary and folk artists and representatives of the multicultural arts field. They convened to exchange information about artist residencies, arts education, program development, technical assistance, and discussions on issues of importance. An evening of performances was presented and opportunities were made available for artists to create in collaboration with others. The conference was also an opportunity to honor artists and elected officials that have provided public service in the arts for more than twenty-five years.

The State-Local Partnership Annual Conference

The State-Local Partnership ▲ Annual Gathering established in 1993 for the purpose of strengthening the infrastructure of the local arts agency field. Technical assistance in the form opportunities, networking administrative/management workshops, panels and lectures have been some of the methods of transferring skills to the field. The 2001 Annual Gathering was held March 7-9th at the Marconi Conference Center in Marin County. The focus was on the State-Local Partnership's role in the California Arts Council's visibility campaign, public relations and marketing. Other areas discussed were: Criteria and input from the field on a proposed Cities Fund and Cultural Infrastructure Development Fund; Expanding Organizational Capacity; Developing Partnerships with Cities; Cultural Diversity and Professional/ Leadership Development; National Arts Stabilization Evaluation Model; and the CAC's Arts in Education programs. All future Annual Gatherings have been renamed the Nancy Clute Annual Conference, in memory of the Director of one of the original State-Local Partners, Madera Arts Council. Nancy Clute was a source of strength within the Local Arts Agency field and will be deeply missed by the field.

oet Laureate

Assembly Bill 113 by Assemblymember Fran Pavley was signed into law establishing a State Poet Laureate. The CAC is responsible for the nominating process that will produce three nominees to be sent to the Governor. The Governor will then select the poet.

The Poet Laureate will perform six public readings in all geographic regions of the state and will bring the poetic arts to Californians and California students.

The requirements for the nominees include:

- Poet is generally recognized for the excellence of his or her work;
- Poet has works of poetry currently in print; and
- Poet agrees to serve for a period of two years beginning in 2002.

"When you cannot reach a child through talking or through mathematics, you can reach a child through painting - and you can always reach a child through music. And once you reach a child through music, it's only a hop, skip, and a jump to reaching that child through poetry. And once you reach a child through poetry, that child has been opened up to life forever."

Alice Walker, Author "California: The State of the Arts"

To recognize the achievements in the arts by the people who helped make them happen during the past 25 years, the CAC developed several award categories including: the Young Artist Award, the Outstanding Arts Educator Award, the Council Members' Award, the Director's Award, the Lifetime Achievement Award, the Energy Conservation Poster Contest Award, the Sankofa Awards and the various recognition awards presented for achievement in specific disciplines.

GRANT PROGRAMS

Through grant awards to artists, nonprofit arts organizations, and local governments, the California Arts Council furthers the legislative mandates and the mission of the agency. Grant awards help to support artistic programming, strengthen internal management, assist in the employment of professional staff and artists, and provide access to the arts for all Californians. Volunteer panels comprised of artists, arts administrators, and other knowledgeable members of the arts community review grant applications to all programs. Their recommendations are, in turn, presented to the Arts Council for final approval.

During the 2000-2001 year, the CAC awarded 1,720 grants totaling $28,992,596 in 18 grant categories. The dollar demand was the greatest in CAC history. The CAC received 2,653 requests totaling over $84 million. Through the CAC's review and ranking process and the limitations of the agency budget, only $0.34 was awarded for every $1.00 requested. Grants were distributed to individuals and groups, organizations and local governments in 300 cities.

Primary Activities Supported Through Grant Programs

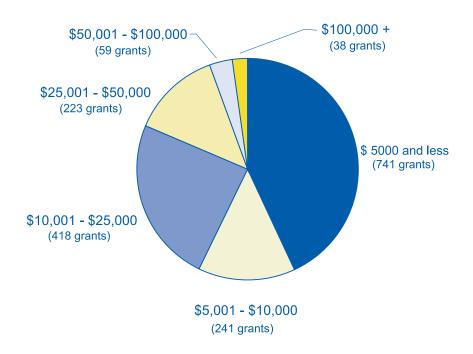

The largest set of funded activities are in the Arts in Education section. These include artist residencies, arts instruction, curriculum development, technical assistance and conferences. Organizational Support is general operating support, organizational stabilization and support for administrative and artistic staff; Presentation of the Arts includes concerts, readings, exhibitions and festivals; Arts Production grants were for Fellowships and artwork creation; Marketing and Distribution of the Arts includes publications and broadcasting; Other included building public awareness, recording, filming and taping.

Number and Size of Grant Awards

The CAC's purpose is to make the arts accessible to all Californians. To further that purpose, grant programs are designed to extend the state's resources to as many groups and individuals as is possible in order to reach the rich diversity of California's communities. This approach has an impact on the size of the grants. The median grant amount in 2000-2001 is $7,480. Grant sizes ranged from $298 in the Performing Arts Touring and Presenting Program to $400,000 for technical assistance in the Arts in Education Program.

Geographic Distribution of Grants

The CAC awarded 1,298 grants to grantees in the 12 most-populated counties. This represents 75.4% of all grants awarded. These counties are home to 26,062,259 residents - 76.9% of the state's population.

The CAC awarded 177 grants to the 31 least-populated counties (those with less than 200,000 population). This represents 10.2% of all grants awarded. These counties are home to 1,996,006 residents - 5.9% of the state's population.

Arts in Education Program

The Arts in Education Program enables Arts Council grantees to develop, expand or create arts in education programs in partnership with school districts for K-12 students throughout California.

New Program

Arts in Education Demonstration Projects Program

37 grants totaling $4,286,461

The Arts in Education Demonstration Projects Program seeks to make arts basic to schools by defining models that work and describing why and how they are successful so other schools and communities can impart or emulate these "best practices." The project requires a partnership between a community arts organization and schools, an evaluation component, replicability, visibility, the inclusion of artists and a focus on arts education in the school during the K-12 school day. A first round of funding was awarded in February to 37 grantees serving 205 schools, working in 51 school districts.

Grantee Highlights:

California State University, Sacramento (CSUS)

This Demonstration Project will focus on MOSAICS, a replicable program of study for the CSUS Master of Arts in Education degree. MOSAICS assists graduate students in the development of individual curriculum and assessment projects for integrating the arts in school including the use of multicultural artists and arts resources. The initial two-year program of study registered 53 credentialed teachers, which is larger than any other masters program in the College of Education. It will include curriculum development, technology training, building the capacity of participating schools, and the enhancement of multicultural arts programs.

Number of children served through all programs ~ 6,405,884

Arts Partnerships for Education funded 18 partnerships under the umbrella of a clearinghouse project for business partnerships for arts education. Arts, Inc. of Los Angeles, served as the clearinghouse assisting the Council to raise private sector support for arts/school projects, promote these programs as models, develop evaluation protocols and to implement a public relations and marketing program. The projects incorporate extensive arts programming in low performing schools and in communities of need to improve the learning environment and the school culture. The 18 grantees worked in 16 school districts, serving 56 schools.

Grantee Highlights:

Los Angeles Center for Education Research (LACER)

Providing arts-based after-school programs in music, dance, visual arts, and theater representing diverse cultural traditions, LACER employs professional artists to work with 1,500 students (ages 10-14) in four Los Angeles Unified School District schools in low-income neighborhoods. LACER has an advisory council of representatives from business, labor, the nonprofit arts, the media, higher education, the Los Angeles City Council, and the entertainment industry. Current supporters include Paramount Pictures, Pacific Bell, 20th Century Fox, UFCW Local 770, Eastman Kodak, and Local 777. Programs are provided through a partnership between parents, teachers and professional artists. CAC funding of $105,000 will expand programs, develop a new strategic plan, and extend the Corporate Donor Campaign.

Local Arts Education Partnership Program

17 grants totaling $493,000

Local Arts Education Partnership Program operates in partnership with the California Department of Education. It was created through legislative mandate in 1996 and is funded by sales of the Arts License Plate. In FY 2000-2001 matching grants of $29,000 were awarded to successful grantees. The Local Arts Education Partnership Program encourages a locally-based, collaborative, inclusive approach to improving arts education, using existing community arts resources and artists in a planned and coordinated way. The CAC funds consortia of local arts agencies, local education agencies, and arts and community resources to plan, implement and evaluate comprehensive arts education programs in their local school districts with the goal to strengthen basic arts skills and knowledge in California's public schools. "Arts" include the four disciplines of dance, theater, music and the visual arts, and other creative art forms. The 17 grantees served 106 schools, in 25 school districts.

Grantee Highlights:

Cultural Arts Council of Sonoma County

Partnering with the Santa Rosa City School District, the Cultural Arts Council of Sonoma County created the ArtQuest program. ArtQuest students representing all art disciplines, linked their artistic studies with younger students in the City of Santa Rosa.

Through staff development, cross disciplinary planning, in-depth use of community resources and technology, the project strengthened visual and performing arts in five schools in the Santa Rosa City School District. In accordance with the Visual and Performing Arts Framework and newly adopted State Content Standards, arts curricula was designed and activated by teams of ten art specialists, six core academic teachers, local arts agency and local education agency project coordinators, guest artists and other community arts specialists. The project focused on the high school level and incorporates four area feeder schools: three elementary schools and a middle school.

New Program Exemplary Arts Education Program 110 grants totaling $2,300,358

Exemplary Arts Education awards funding to exemplary (highest ranking) Arts Council grantees that have established arts in education programs. The grant requires a response to two major questions: 1) What is the "value added" or "leveraged partnerships" that additional funding will bring; and 2) How will the grantee document and evaluate the project. The reports submitted by grantees on the additional work accomplished demonstrate the profound benefits of this funding:

- * 136,364 additional students served
- ₹ 700 additional schools served
- 2,098 additional classrooms served
- 1,096 additional teachers trained in incorporating the arts in the classroom
- 3 451 additional artists trained to go into the classrooms
- 2626 additional artists contracted to work in the schools

Grantee Highlights:

Carlsbad Arts Office, Carlsbad

The Arts Office was established by City Ordinance in 1986 to develop, promote and coordinate the arts in Carlsbad and to encourage public awareness and interest in the visual and performing arts.

The Arts Office provides cultural services throughout the Carlsbad community, working in partnership with local organizations, artists and other city departments to advance the arts in the areas of arts education, support for local arts groups, programs for youth, families and seniors, information services, special events and public art. The Arts Office has established a partnership with the Encinitas Union School District and the Encinitas Commission for the Arts in its Project SHAPES to assess the arts at nine schools using the California Department of Education Visual and Performing Arts Framework.

The Exemplary Arts Education Program grant will provide funds to build on previous arts education work by adding theater and dance activities in grades 4-6 at El Camino Creek Elementary School. The grant will also provide an artist to enhance the school's gallery curriculum and add two Gallery Family Days. It is the goal of the partnership to expand Project SHAPES district-wide.

Multicultural Arts Development Program

The Multicultural Arts Development (MCAD) Program promotes cultural diversity by supporting the development, growth, and stabilization of culture-specific and multicultural artists' groups/collectives and arts organizations. Grantees must be deeply rooted in, and reflective of, historically underserved communities. MCAD is comprised of three separate matching grant categories and a technical assistance component.

Expanded Program Multicultural Advancement Program

30 grants totaling $1,298,780

The Multicultural Advancement Program is designed to assist in the capacity-building of the arts organizations. Grantees are generally small to mid-size arts organizations with extensive histories of providing arts programs in their communities. Awards are for a three-year cycle.

Grantee Highlights:

Radio Bilingüe, Fresno

Radio Bilingüe is National Latino Public Radio, a network of community radio stations licensed and operated by the Latino community. Radio Bilingüe is the only national distributor of Spanish-language programming in public radio and serves hard-to-reach rural and urban audiences throughout California. Through satellite technology, affiliate stations now carry its programs to cities in the U.S. and northern Mexico. Partnering with California State University, San Marcos, its programming is now available worldwide through the internet. Its programs focus on music, culture, the arts and issues of importance to its audiences. Radio Bilingüe produces numerous arts programs, including the Viva El Mariachi! Festival, and the Norteño-Tejano Music and Dance Festival.

A nonprofit organization since 1976, Radio Bilingüe (www.radiobilingue.org) participates in the CAC's Multicultural Advancement program to establish a fund development system designed to generate revenue necessary to more successfully operate the organization. This grant will enable Radio Bilingüe to achieve its goal of generating eight dollars for every dollar invested in arts development. The MCA grant will be used to support four key positions: a Development Director, an Associate, a Grant Writer, and an Associate Director.

EXPANDED PROGRAM Multicultural Entry Program 131 grants totaling $518,300

The Multicultural Entry Program provides operational or project support for traditional folk arts groups or contemporary arts organizations that reflect a specific culture and that have been doing arts programming for at least one year. In addition to a three-year grant, the program includes a Professional Development component consisting of a series of educational training activities, including workshops, conferences and training seminars.

The Next Generation program is a new program that recognizes and supports young multicultural artists (typically ages 18-25). Presently in its initial year, funding flows through arts groups and organizations for such activities as opportunity grants for young artists, exhibitions, performances, marketing and promotion, and professional development activities. Grantees must demonstrate at least a two-year track record of programs and services for young artists.

Grantee Highlights:

The Lula Washington Dance Theatre (LWDT), Los Angeles

Created by Lula and Erwin Washington in 1980, the south central Los Angelesbased Lula Washington Dance Theatre provides a creative outlet for dance artists. Composed of athletic young dancers with strong modern dance and ballet training, the company performs a mixed repertoire of dance throughout California and the nation. Many of the dancers began as Washington's students when they were children. Others migrated to the company from across the country drawn by the intelligence, physicality, range, and theatricality of the work. The dancers perform a variety of programs from modern dance to African dance; from jazz to cutting edge performance art.

The organization has a school that provides classes in ballet, modern dance, jazz, African, hip-hop, tap, gymnastics, dance-theatre and performance art. LWDT's program components include a professional modern dance troupe of 10 members, a Youth Dance Ensemble, and a latchkey project for inner city children called "I Do Dance, Not Drugs."

With Next Generation Program grant funds, Lula Washington Dance Theatre will provide a year of free professional dance classes for three to ten young dance artists. The participants will choreograph, perform, and produce two studio showcase performances. They will receive instruction in arts administration, marketing, and fundraising. Each participant will audition to perform with LWDT as apprentices or company members. Website: www.lulawashington.com

The Multicultural Visibility Grant program was established to provide organizations with a one-time marketing support grant. Many of the multicultural arts organizations are small-budget operations without the resources to market themselves effectively. These funds allow grantees to promote themselves, communicate more effectively, and develop materials to aid in the promotion of their services and products.

Asian American Women Artists Association, San Francisco

Asian American Women Artists Association (AAWAA) is an organization that supports and promotes Asian American women artists in the visual, literary, and performing arts throughout the San Francisco Bay Area. Established in 1988, AAWAA's mission provides a haven for Asian American women artists and increases the public's awareness of contemporary Asian women artists by organizing exhibitions, presenting slide lectures, panel discussions, publishing catalogs, and providing public outreach education. The organization works to redress the invisibility of Asian American women artists in mainstream galleries, museums, publications, and art educational curricula. AAWAA has presented in venues that include the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, the Palace of the Legion of Honor, Headlands Center for the Arts, Richmond Arts Center, UC Berkeley, the California College of Arts and Crafts, Mills College, and UC Santa Cruz.

CAC's Visibility funds will go toward promoting their newly enhanced website as an important educational resource by distributing printed material, adding Internet links, and holding a promotional event. AAWAA will also produce a CD catalog of current artist's work and distribute these to institutions, businesses, and individuals.

Organizational Support Program

657 grants totaling $7,087,948

The Organizational Support Program encourages the artistic and administrative development, stability, and vitality of arts organizations in all artistic disciplines. Requests may be for general operating support or project-related purposes. Grantees are expected to achieve a standard of excellence significant to their community, the region, and the state. This excellence must find its way into its artistic, administrative, and outreach programs for its defined community.

Because of their significant resources, Large Budget Organizations, with annual budgets over $1 million, must satisfy additional outreach requirements by providing services to the arts community and the community at large through resource sharing, increasing the participation in the arts by underserved groups, and achieving a standard of excellence that is significant to the region, the state, and the nation.

Grantee Highlights:

Border Voices, San Diego

This program serves 200 area schools with high impact poetry programs for underachieving students to help students find their own voices through verse. A unique partnership with five local agencies carries these programs to school districts from La Jolla to San Ysidro. Border Voices developed its comprehensive bilingual poetry program with California Poets in the Schools, The San Diego Union Tribune, The San Diego County Office of Education, and San Diego State University.

A two-day San Diego Border Voices Poetry Fair is the culminating event held in April at San Diego State University and Balboa Park. The fair blends the voices of some of the country's major poets, filmmakers, novelists, and musicians with the words of young student poets regarding music, culture, and writing. The list of notables reads like an international Who's Who of art and culture: Nobel laureate Czeslaw Milosz, U.S. poet laureate Robert Pinsky, Susan Sontag, satirical filmmaker Michael Moore ("Roger & Me" and "TV Nation"), award-winning poet-novelist Victor Martinez, musician-poet Sekou Sundiata, and Native American poet-musician Joy Harjo and her band Poetic Justice. There are also activities for students, including art and poetry classes and related events.

The Border Voices project is the winner of numerous awards. Teachers report it raises student scores on standardized tests and woos kids away from gangs. As project director Jack Webb noted, "The program's success is not a fluke.

When kids rub shoulders and minds with the greatest artists and intellects of our day, they lose their fear of excellence, and begin to feel its excitement. When they learn the very simple techniques that lie at the basis of all great literature, they begin to write out of their own experience, and their words are a storm, a cannonade of memory and hope, a quiet whisper at the edge of sense that recalls our own childhood dreams."

The San Francisco Symphony

This world-class symphony orchestra utilizes CAC funding for its outreach program, Adventures In Music (AIM). The program is innovative in providing no-cost music education for 16,000 3rd, 4th, and 5th grade students at 91 of San Francisco's public elementary schools and some parochial and private schools. In designing the AIM program, the symphony worked with curriculum specialists from the San Francisco Unified School District to insure that AIM is integrated into the broader curriculum. Some years ago the symphony expanded the program to provide music education to first and second graders in 17 schools. The program has become a model for other symphonies in cities throughout the U.S.

Program components include a series of in-school performances by specially trained ensembles; professional development sessions for teachers and principals; supplementary resources for teachers (such as rhythm instruments, compact discs, books, and videos); and a journal for each student. The program culminates in a field trip to Davies Symphony Hall for a concert by the San Francisco Symphony.

A community-oriented music program, AIM is a collaborative effort between the San Francisco Symphony and various community and arts institutions - the San Francisco Unified School District, the San Francisco Community Music Center, the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, Young Audiences of the Bay Area, and in past seasons, the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, the San Francisco Public Library, the Exploratorium, the De Young Museum of Fine Art, and the Polaroid Company. Performing Arts Touring and Presenting Program 123 grants totaling $581,150

The Performing Arts Touring and Presenting Program assists artists and presenters in bringing high quality performing arts to communities throughout the state. The program accomplishes this goal by providing partial artist fee support to organizations that choose to present artists included in the CAC's Touring Artists Directory.

The program offers extensive professional development and skill building opportunities throughout the year for performing artists, presenters, and booking managers. These opportunities include one-day conferences on the topics of marketing to presenters, creation of effective promotional videos, negotiation, etc.

Children's Creative Project, Santa Barbara

Since 1974, the Children's Creative Project, Santa Barbara, has been providing quality arts experiences for elementary and secondary school students. The Children's Creative Project is a program of the Santa Barbara County Education Office.

Each year, during regular classroom hours, artists-in-residence instruct 30,000 students in visual arts, dance, theater, and vocal music. In addition, 80,000 students view performances by local and nationally recognized touring companies. For many of these children, the specially-designed programs are their primary fine arts experience.

With funding from the Performing Arts Touring and Presenting Program the Children's Creative Project provided three free community performances of the Santa Monica-based, 12-member Ballet Folclorico do Brasil.

Ballet Folclorico Do Brasil, established by Amen Santo in 1990, provided programs to the Santa Barbara community that included the ritual acrobatics of capoeira martial arts, mystical candomble, playful samba de lata, and the electric samba reggae. The Do Brasil programs incorporated traditional instruments, like the prehistoric berimbau (a stringed bow instrument of African origin), the atabaque (drum), agagô (bell), surdo (base drum), pandeiro, and the comical cuica. The company of dancers and musicians also provided thirteen school residency activities at various K-12 schools in Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo Counties.

Rural and Inner City Presenting Pilot Program

42 grants totaling $134,700

In early spring 1999, the Rural and Inner City Presenting Pilot Program was initiated to bring public performances of pre-adjudicated artists to traditionally underserved audiences in rural communities and inner-city neighborhoods.

Stanislaus County Library, Modesto

Located in downtown Modesto, this branch of the Stanislaus County Library includes performances as part of its overall services to its primary constituency. For its performances, the library also draws people from nearby communities. The policy of the library's presenting program is to make the performances free of charge and accessible to as many as possible. Stanislaus County has a higher percentage of poor and very poor children compared to the state average. The library is based in a large agricultural region with historically higher-than-average unemployment, reaching nine percent in Fall of 2000. Programs are often attended at above capacity and the library consistently maintains long waiting lists of people wishing to get seating. Website: www.ainet.com/scfl/scfl.htm.

The Stanislaus County Library received a CAC grant to provide half of the performance fees of Opera Piccola for an evening of performance. Opera Piccola is an Oakland-based, multi-racial ensemble of actors, singers, dancers, and designers who present community performances throughout northern California as well as providing artist residences for elementary, middle, and high school. Their productions are developed with a philosophy of community building in mind and are accessible to children, adults, and seniors. Its repertoire includes African, Chinese, German, and Mayan folk tales, an historical opera by Mozart, and a program about people with disabilities, "Taking the 'Dis' Out of Disabilities." Their performances incorporate audience participation, dance, humor, and lively action.

California Challenge Program

16 grants totaling $601,000

The California Challenge Program assists eligible California arts organizations to obtain new and increased private funding to support innovation and artistic excellence. The California Challenge Program supports creative thinking about arts programming, management, institutional development, and arts delivery systems.

Grantee Highlights:

American Indian Film Institute, San Francisco

The American Indian Film Institute (AIFI) is a nonprofit media arts center founded in 1979 to foster understanding of the culture, traditions, and issues of contemporary Native Americans. Today, AIFI is the major Native American media and cultural arts presenter in California, and its festival is the world's oldest and most recognized international film exposition dedicated to Native Americans in cinema.

The goals of AIFI are inherently educational: to encourage Native/non-Native filmmakers to bring to the broader media culture the Native voices, viewpoints and stories that have been historically excluded from mainstream media; to develop Indian and non-Indian audiences for this work; and to advocate for authentic representations of Indians in the media.

Challenge program funding will support the Tribal Touring Program, a two-year pilot project in 2000-01 and 2001-02, that will present an outreach version of the American Indian Film Festival, along with media production workshops for youth, and Native Americans living in rural and tribal communities. Expanded Program Artists in Residence Program

The Artists in Residence Program provides funding for projects that emphasize long-term, in-depth interaction between professional artists and participants through workshops and classes sponsored by schools, nonprofit organizations, units of government, social institutions and tribal councils. In this way, the program effectively enables the participants to understand the art form involved and to develop their creativity through that art form. It also forges a partnership among artists, sponsoring organizations, and the citizens of California. In 2000-01, the program placed 1,138 artists into residencies that served 1,351 sites and directly engaged 565,000 students and community members in arts making activities. Furthermore, nearly one million additional community members, teachers, and parents and benefited from residency performances, readings and exhibitions.

Hollygrove

Jill Holden conducts theater workshops for children at Hollygrove, a Los Angeles residential treatment center for abused and neglected children. Many participants have experienced a lack of education, as well as exposure to criminal activity. Jill began her residency in October 1999 and continues in her third and final year of CAC funding. She has found this a challenging population to work with. "Sometimes the abuse was so extreme that it informs everything they do and are... for a week a child may be totally into the work, throwing herself into the games with the abandon that only a child with a wild imagination can muster. But then something happens, a relative doesn't show up for an outing, another child teases them, or something else triggers a terrible memory or an acting-out behavior that has lain hidden. Then, it is as if I don't even know this child." Jill has learned through working with these children to focus on the process and its rewards and let go of the results. Even as her own career has grown to include voice-overs, TV guest shots, and a film for HBO, she has come to think of herself more as a teacher. She continues to perform her one-woman show, "Private Stories, Public Schools," and found that the people she is "hustling to see it are no longer producers, directors, and casting people but educators, school principals, and parents."

EXPANDED PROGRAM Artists Fellowship Program Media, New Genre, and Digital Arts 46 grants totaling $220,000

The Artists Fellowship Program supports the significant contributions made by California's artists. Each year a number of fellowships are awarded to exemplary California artists. Fellowships are awarded to artists who are the primary creators of their work, not those who interpret or carry out the work of others. Fellowships are merit awards based on artistic quality achievement, and aesthetic investigation.

Grantee Highlights:

Lynn Hershman-San Francisco

Lynn Hershman is an awarding winning filmmaker, video artist and photographer. Her work has been exhibited in major festivals throughout the world including the Sundance Film Festival, the Festival for Electronic Cinema in Chiba, Japan and the Sydney Film Festival.

Her pioneering use of digital tools to explore how new technologies have changed how we view and inhabit the world led to the first interactive videodisc created by an artist. Titled Lorna (1979-82), the piece uses an interactive narrative about a woman unable to leave her apartment due to media inspired fears of the outside world. The work has multiple endings and sound tracks and is now in the collection of the ZKM Mediammuseum in Karlsruhe, Germany.

In 1995, Ms. Hershman was the first woman to receive a Tribute and Retrospective at the San Francisco International Film Festival. Also in that year, she was the recipient of the ZKM Mediammuseums' Siemans Media Prize and had retrospectives at the National Museum of Canada as well as the Center for Contemporary Art in Warsaw, Poland.

In 1998, Ms. Hershman received The Flintridge Foundation Award for Lifetime Achievement in the Visual Arts and in 1999 became a Fellow at the Sundance Institute and was awarded the Golden Nica, Prix Ars Electronica in Linz, Austria, considered to be the top international prize in the media field.

In 2000 she was awarded a Daniel Langlois Foundation Grant, and received a commission from ZDF/Arte for a new film, Teknolust. Ms. Hershman's work is in numerous collections, including the Museum of Modern Art (N. Y.), the National Gallery of Canada, DG Bank, Frankfurt, The Walker Art Center, Minneapolis, The University Art Museum, Berkeley, and the Hess Collection.

State-Local Partnership Program

52 grants totaling $2,221,001

The State-Local Partnership Program (SLPP) supports the growth and development of local arts councils and commissions. Through their development, the CAC promotes increased participation in the arts throughout the state and encourages local public and private arts funding. Local Partners are county arts agencies designated by their local government body and are mandated to foster the development and growth of cultural resources in their communities. The exceptions are the City of Los Angeles and the City of San Diego which were allowed to participate based on a population formulas when the SLPP was originally established. The SLPP provides general operating support grants awarded on the evidence of quality arts service provided to the community; broad representation of the community in governance, planning, and programs; and fiscal and administrative competence.

Grantee Highlights:

The Humboldt Arts Council

The Humboldt Arts Council (HAC) is a local arts agency in a rural county with a population under 130,000. With the support of an operations grant from the CAC, HAC launched the Carnegie Restoration Project to transform Eureka's historic Carnegie Library building into a cultural center and regional art museum operated by the HAC. Funding for the restoration project included grants from the Kresge Foundation, Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund, the Humboldt Area Foundation, and the California Energy Commission. The opening of the new art center provides enhanced opportunities to advance the arts in that underserved region. The HAC has fully staffed the facility to be open to the public five days a week, including weekends, offers a full schedule of exhibitions, a monthly artist lecture series, a public venue for special events and a Young Artists Academy that will include a youth gallery, workshop/studio classroom and arts resource center for youth and families. The HAC is also completing a museum self-assessment process in preparation for accreditation by the American Association of Museums and is working on an endowment campaign to raise funds to support facility operations in perpetuity. The Humboldt Arts Council is a leader in serving artists and the community, creating countywide visibility for the arts.

Traditional Folk Arts Program

30 grants totaling $138,000

Folk Arts are defined as "homegrown traditional artistic activities" of groups sharing the same ethnic heritage, language, occupation, religion or geographic area over generations. The Traditional Folk Arts Program (TFAP) recognizes that the arts carry with them a sense of community aesthetic and demonstrate the highest degree of artistic excellence. Funded projects include: community-based concerts, festivals, storytelling events and exhibitions; workshops and gatherings; the conservation or creation of folk art items; inter-generational classes or other educational programs; master-apprentice collaborations; the documentation of traditional folk arts, skills, ceremonies, beliefs or performances; publications and other activities.

The California Arts Council and The Fund for Folk Culture (based in New Mexico) have entered into a contractual agreement whereby The Fund administers the application, and review process and recommends the grants of the Traditional Folk Arts Program to the California Arts Council.

Grantee Highlights:

United Cambodian Community Arts of Aspara (UCCAA), Long Beach UCCAA offers classes in Cambodian music and dance. CAC funding will support the continued training efforts in classical Cambodian dance music for a pin peat group that was assembled in 1999 by project director Sophiline Shapiro. The goal of the project is to provide live musical accompaniment for the UCC Arts of Apsara dance group. Associated with this training is a program of free traditional dance, music, and theater workshops, poetry recitals and the promotion of the resident professional dance ensemble.

The recent passing of resident musician and teacher Ponn Yinn at the age of 82 reaffirms the importance of any master in traditional arts and the value of passing on training of respective art forms. Ponn Yinn's lifetime experience was as a bearer of Cambodian classical music. At one time, Ponn Yinn was the appointed principal musician and teacher with the Classical Symphony of the Army for the Royal Ballet in Cambodia. In 1975 with the victory of Pol Pot, he was forced to hide his identity and work as a farm laborer and village musician. At one point, a Khmer Rouge soldier "forced him to make a flute fashioned from a bicycle handle bar, and forced him to play it nightly through loudspeakers to drown the screams of people killed in nearby fields." After Ponn Yinn's escape and eventual arrival to California, he dedicated the remainder of his life to teaching Cambodian Classical music and dance to refugees and their children. His work with younger musicians has insured the maintenance of an important cultural heritage.

Public Art and Design

The Public Art and Design Program serves as a resource for public art information. No grants are awarded in this category. Resources available include samples of public art ordinances, a list of California agencies that fund local public art programs, and state and national organizations that can provide public art information.

Interagency Program

5 grants totaling $233,635

The California Arts Council is mandated to assist other state agencies in achieving their goals using the arts as a tool. Thus, a number of partnerships have been developed over the years to incorporate arts programming into the plans and activities of the Department of Mental Health, Division of State Hospitals, the California Youth Authority, the Trade Technology and Commerce Agency, Office of Tourism, Division of Fairs and Exposition, the Commission of the Californias and the Department of Parks and Recreation. Each agency utilizes the arts to further its mission and expand the delivery of services to the public.

Technical Assistance, Infrastructure Development Special Initiatives & Special Projects

62 grants totaling $2,673,617

This is a general category that provides the CAC with leadership opportunities, the convening of representatives of the arts, the evaluation of outcomes of programs, and related activities that support programmatic purposes.

Technical Assistance grants support the increase of technical skills and knowledge of the field through workshops and conferences and special projects that further the education of the public in the arts.

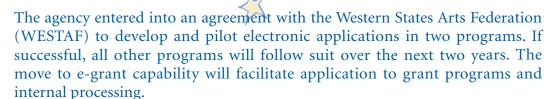

A new program initiative to support the development of statewide service organizations and multicultural networks was established during this year. Funding of those networks are included in this category.

Arts and Accessibility Technical Assistance Program

The CAC is committed to the American with Disabilities Act (ADA) and to making all of its programs and services accessible to people with and without disabilities. To achieve this goal we have entered into a partnership with The National Arts and Disability Center (NADC) at UCLA to manage an Arts and Accessibility Technical Assistance Program to make available grants up to $500 for professional development and/or technical assistance activities. These grants are available to all artists and arts organizations in the state. Refer to www.cac.ca.gov.

Financial Status for Fiscal Year 2000-2001 he California Arts Council (CAC) budget for Fiscal Year 2000-01 consists of State Operations and Local Assistance. State Operations provide the funding for CAC staff and related operational costs such as facilities, peer panels, contracts, data processing and communications. Local Assistance provides funding for all grant awards made by the CAC and for technical assistance to the field. The CAC has four primary funding sources: General Fund, Federal Funds, Graphic Design License Plate Account, and reimbursements.

General Funds account for 95 percent of the CAC's budget for 2000-2001.

Federal Funds are awards received by the CAC from the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA). Each year the award amount varies and the funds are used for support of CAC State Operations, arts in education, and arts for underserved communities.

Graphic Design License Plate Account funds are monies generated through the sale of the Arts License Plate. Funds are used for arts education and local arts programming as defined in state statute. (Chapter 1282, Statutes of 1992).
